NEW FRANKS PLOT; TRAP BOYS

HERIOT TO WIN

Will Face French Chambers Today.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—By Associated Press.—Parliamentary groups today are actively generating enthusiasm in depression, according to their political complexion, but even Premier Heriot's worst enemies would not predict his fall when he faces the legislature tomorrow.

His friends say that the approval of the London accord is certain while his adversaries, armed merely to predict his fall when he faces the legislature tomorrow.

The premier's opponents are downcast because they think they have sufficient material to attack the government, particularly on Premier MacDonald's letter, which they interpret as showing that Great Britain is not a friend of France, and as a proof that bankers will try to drive the French from the Ruhr before the time arrives upon it at the International conference.

The trouble is that M. Heriot's political enemies do not care to attempt an overthrow of the government now that an apparent solution of the reparation question has been reached.

PICK DAWES OFFICIALS TODAY.

The first step towards actually putting the Dawes plan into operation probably will be taken at the audience of the Dawes officials today.

The Dawes plan, which is to be the new plan of organization, or at least a member of the executive committee which supports the Dawes plan, will support the Germans in putting the final touches to the plan for the economic salvation of the Ruhr.

The execution will not begin until the London agreements have been signed, which ceremony has been set for Aug. 29.

As there are many thousands of French and Belgian railroad men and their economic staffs who are comfortably settled in Germany, there will be some task to unscramble all of the tangles in which the civilian forces of the Ruhr have taken part during the last year and a half.

HERIOT ATTACKS DAWES.

French Tribune Foreign News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Former President Heriot, in an interview to be printed tomorrow, asserts that the Dawes plan of France of all her "sure things" in exchange for "scraps of paper" meaning evacuation of the Ruhr against promises which can only be measured after two years, if ever.

It is understood on the highest authority tonight that former Premier Heriot will not speak against President Wilson in the senate tomorrow.

No reports on the Dawes program.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 20.—By the Associated Press.—After listening today to a detailed account of the recent separation conference in London, the Belgian cabinet unanimously endorsed the conduct of affairs by Premier Jules and Foreign Minister Hayot and congratulated them on the agreements reached.

RAVENS U. S. TO DROP DEBT.

ROME, Aug. 20.—By the Associated Press.—The minister of finance, Prof. De Stefan, and the minister of economy, Sig. De Nava, have given their impressions in interviews published in Italian newspapers on their return from the London conference. Sig. De Nava, referring to the question of interalleled debts, contended that, having regard to the fact that the Dawes plan represents a diminution in the claims of all, it could not be thought of that America and Great Britain would not take their claims.

GERMAN ACTION SEEMS CERTAIN.

Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 20.—Political circles are convinced that the German government will be successful in its efforts to force the nationalists to approve the Dawes plan on the Dawes plan.

The nationalists had a long round conference yesterday and today, at which they discussed the advisability of the Dawes plan.

This could be important as at the same time it would enable the government to obtain a two-thirds vote for the Dawes legislation.

Prize court decisions that Leopold is not fit for the field to be involved because of an anti-social philosophy.

He argues on the age of the defendants on their alleged fantasies and mental weakness, and has ready scores of decisions shattering it all. It appears in the papers, and the world is tumbling down around the likes of Clarence Darrow and the Bachrach brothers, Benjamin and Walter.

Darrow Sits Unmoved.

But Darrow is disturbed by it all, he does not seem to be. He sits like an old lion, between the two other counsel, and there is no worry in his faint court.

And what of the two defendants? They were cast down only that once when women were weeping and Savage was shouting and hurling his denunciation into their faces.

Leopold's eyes are red, bloodshot and somewhat sad, and he seems to pay no attention, but Richard is animated and looks forward with his apart as Prosecutor Marshall droves across a number of murder cases.

"And the defendant in this case met the deceased at the intersection of this street and that boulevard. Women exchanged a few words, and then the deceased went into the little theater playmate some figure of his imagination.

Marshall goes into some dry case and Richard slumps back again and beats his brow or reads over Darrow's shoulder some one of the countless letters that he has been getting as the trial goes on.

Marshall starts his argument with the question of the responsibility of Leopold and Loeff for their actions. He stated to the court that "there are no degrees of responsibility, but if responsibility exists at all it exists for all purposes."

Mentions Haymarket Riot.

In backing up this argument he read to the court from a decision in the Spies case, arising out of the Haymarket riot, and from a United States Supreme Court decision concerning crimes committed by the Mormons in religious belief that religion was above the law.

"Now as I tangent to this response, Mr. Marshall said, "we do have a right to defend him as a human being, and as a United States citizen, and as a man who has committed a crime."

"That is also what the anarchists believed, as the Spies case has it, but they did not have any right to come out and say what they believed had no bearing on the fact that they had committed murder in violation of laws they did not believe in."

Hits at Philosophies.

Further contention with the Leopold-Loeb philosophies, he cited this from the United States Supreme court decision in the Spies case.

"Laws are made for the government of action, and while they cannot interfere with more beliefs and opinions, they may with practices."

And so, he contended, it made no difference what Nathan and Richard said, the law was amenable to the law and under the law they must be liable to death for murder.

Then he went suddenly into a long list of legal and lay definitions of the "high crimes of murder and kidnapping for ransom," and he kept at it persistently and so long that Judge Caverly intervened.

In this perhaps, the chief justice gave some indication of his reactions to the testimony so far laid before him, for he said:

"Just a moment. I do not want to limit you at all, but it seems to me there is no necessity of reading cases dealing with the subject, and I have a pile of rulings of murder with malice. The corpus delicti has been proven. They have not denied it.

"It is the same in this case. They have not denied anything here. They have not denied any allegation contained in your indictment."

Now Marshall has gone into the question of "the shameful and malignant heart," which has become so familiar a phrase in the case.

He tells that Leopold and Loeff quib-

Tells How British Courts Rush Trials of Murderers; Police Do Not Use 'Third Degree'

This is the second of a series of articles on Great Britain's methods to speed up justice. The spread of crime in America caused United States lawyers who recently visited England to make a special study of British criminal trials.

BY JOHN STEELE.

Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.

(Copyright: 1924, By The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Aug. 26.—As soon as a man is arrested on a charge of murder, either in London or the provinces, the police take him into custody and there is some good reason, such as illness, which would make it impossible for the accused to appear in court, he must be brought before a magistrate's court within twenty-four hours.

The moment he is arrested he must be told by the policeman making the arrest that the charge is against him and at the same time caution him that anything he may say is liable to be used against him at his trial. If, after that, he volunteers to make a statement, the police take it down in writing and it is read over to him on the next day, but they are forbidden to try to exact a confession or use any means which might make the defense of the accused man more difficult.

Technically, they are allowed to question him about the crime, but he is not compelled to answer, and in most cases, particularly in the case of a man who does not confess at the outset is unknown.

Magistrates Have Little Work.

In backing up this argument he read to the court from a decision in the Spies case, arising out of the Haymarket riot, and from a United States Supreme Court decision concerning crimes committed by the Mormons in religious belief that religion was above the law.

"Now as I tangent to this response, Mr. Marshall said, "we do have a right to defend him as a human being, and as a United States citizen, and as a man who has committed a crime."

"That is also what the anarchists believed, as the Spies case has it, but they did not have any right to come out and say what they believed had no bearing on the fact that they had committed murder in violation of laws they did not believe in."

On the other hand, he cited this from the Leopold-Loeb philosophies, he cited this from the United States Supreme court decision in the Spies case.

"Laws are made for the government of action, and while they cannot interfere with more beliefs and opinions, they may with practices."

And so, he contended, it made no difference what Nathan and Richard said, the law was amenable to the law and under the law they must be liable to death for murder.

Then he went suddenly into a long list of legal and lay definitions of the "high crimes of murder and kidnapping for ransom," and he kept at it persistently and so long that Judge Caverly intervened.

In this perhaps, the chief justice gave some indication of his reactions to the testimony so far laid before him, for he said:

"Just a moment. I do not want to limit you at all, but it seems to me there is no necessity of reading cases dealing with the subject, and I have a pile of rulings of murder with malice. The corpus delicti has been proven. They have not denied it.

"It is the same in this case. They have not denied anything here. They have not denied any allegation contained in your indictment."

Now Marshall has gone into the question of "the shameful and malignant heart," which has become so familiar a phrase in the case.

He tells that Leopold and Loeff quibble about whether they should burn and eat away the flesh of their victim with hydrochloric or sulphuric acid.

"One thought it should be sulphuric acid and the other thought hydrochloric acid," he said. "And they selected the hydrochloric acid. And Leopold said they could stop at any time, but he was not quite.

"They wanted to commit the master crime—the perfect crime. They did commit the most atrocious crime."

Responsibility After 10 Years.

And on into the question of responsibility as connected with the age of a defendant.

The Illinois criminal code, he points out, fixes the age of responsibility at about 10 years. He reads a case from 1904. Technical reports, which the law presumes a person over 14 years is responsible.

"A sentence of death for murder was passed upon a boy under 16," he reads from the "1st Missouri," the choirboy—Walter Krauser, Grant's partner, 22, and Grant, 19.

And here, he says, he is at a loss to know what to do with a boy under 16.

Young Ages on List.

Marshall reads: "Dennis Anderson, 21; Thomas Schmitz, 19; Smiling Jack" O'Brien, 22; William Yancey Mills, 22; Frank Camponi, 21; John Henry Rees, 22; Nicholas Vlasi, 22; Jacob Frank, 22; and Grant, 19.

"One hundred pounds!" Darrow said, and turned round and winked gravely at a newspaper man behind him while Savage gave him a scowl.

And Savage repeated: "This 14 year old boy was seated in that car as he thought with friends, and as they wanted to find a victim."

Savage Luring of Victim.

It was a vivid picture and Savage painted it in bold strokes. He came to the meeting of Leopold and Loeff with Bobby Franks and told how the boy was lured into the death trap.

It is clear that Richard, whom he knew well, in whose yard he played every other day, Richard, the handsome older boy he admired and liked and considered his friend and whom he thought he would want to be like some day.

"And here, your honor," Savage continues with that vibrant thrill in his voice, "here we have a crime, cold, blooded and dastardly, committed without even giving the poor little victim a chance for his life, not even a fighting chance."

"This boy, 14 years old, weighing slightly pounds," he continued, and Darrow interrupted him.

"One hundred pounds!" Darrow said, and turned round and winked gravely at a newspaper man behind him while Savage gave him a scowl.

And Savage repeated: "This 14 year old boy was seated in that car as he thought with friends, and as they wanted to find a victim."

Savage Takes Floor.

Now comes Savage, the orator, Savage of the booming voice that can be toned so easily down to the vibrant infection, that thrills and makes jolts rise in throats and tears well up in the eyes.

Savage goes into all the details of Bobby Franks and the theft of the typewriter on which the ransom letter was written.

He tells it all—the purchase of the chisel, the acid. The riding a dozen times on the Illinois Central out to 74th street, in company with the plan to kidnap James Franks, throwing in $12,000 in old bills "out of the window, as the boys could get it and drive away in an opposite direction in an automobile. The reading of the generous pension on retirement, and payable except for misconduct. In such cases the lord chancery may remove him from office.

In the country a police case is taken at petty sessions, where usually magistrates, usually leaders of the local community, sit. They are advised by a solicitor, usually a lawyer. Usually the first appearance of the accused is short. The police simply state the facts and the charge against the man and ask a remand to wait for the result of the coroner's inquest.

The police simply state the facts and ask a remand to wait for the result of the coroner's inquest.

The next step is for the case to go before a public prosecutor, who is an officer of the state, and whose duty it is to decide whether the state will undertake the prosecution or not.

In cases of homicide this automatically is done, but in certain cases of crimes which border on civil offenses the state often leaves the prosecution to the injured parties.

started to drive away, one of these cold-blooded fiends"—and he pointed into the slayers' faces—"struck them several times over the head with the baton.

The cruelty of the picture he is drawing is too much for Savage. His heavy frame is taut and the veins stand out in his forehead as he shouts up at the bench.

Calls Leopold Franks:

"Why, Judge, you wouldn't strike a dog again and again over the head with a stick, and not give him a chance to defend himself."

He turns again and his finger is almost at the tip of Leopold's nose, as he repeats: "Not even a chance, not a fighting chance to protect himself from the cruel blows delivered by that fiend."

He turns again and his finger is almost at the tip of Leopold's nose, as he repeats: "Not even a chance, not a fighting chance to protect himself from the cruel blows delivered by that fiend."

It is too much. His veins stand out in his forehead as he shouts up at the bench.

"My God, your honor! What mercy did they show that boy? What mercy did they show him?"

Mercy? What Did They Show?

"Mercy? Why, your honor, it is an insult in a case of this kind to come before the bar of justice and beg for mercy."

"There is a maxim: that your honor well remembers, that he who comes into court must do so with clean-hands. I say that if even there were two cold-blooded murderers coming before the bar of justice with dirty hands those men would have before you."

"It is in your honor's hands will be just as merciful to those defendants sitting here as they were to Bobby Franks."

"Cold Deliberation."

Savage grows calmer and his voice lowers as he tells now of the gurgling and choking and of the "cold premeditated deliberation" or the stuffing of the body into the ditch water in the culvert.

"Leopold," he said, "put on his hip boots so that he might not get his feet wet, and while he was putting the boots on Leopold went to the car and got the hydrochloric acid and poured it over the face and into the eyes and ears and nose of the poor dead boy."

"Not only that, but while putting the boy on the car, he wanted to mutilate his body beyond recognition, so that the poor mother and father over on 11th avenue and the brothers and sisters in years to come would never know the fate of their son and brother, Bobby."

Frank's Quite Courteous.

And it was at this point that Jacob Franks arose quickly and walked out of the courtroom and into the corridor, where he had a dabbler to women's eyes.

Then Mr. Savage, in a few more sentences, closed for the day. He will continue his argument this morning, and he is to be followed in the first argument for the defense by Attorney Walter Bachrach.

Attorney Darrow is expected to close for the defense tomorrow or Saturday, and State Attorney Clegg probably will close for the state on Monday.

FRANCO-GERMAN PACT HELD PERIL TO BRITISH TRADE

English Treasury Chief Hits London Parley.

BY THOMAS RYAN.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.) (Copyright 1924 by The Chicago Tribune.) LONDON, Aug. 20.—An unprecedented situation has arisen here as the result of the outspoken criticism of the work of the London conference on the part of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer.

In an interview published recently in the Manchester Guardian Mr. Snowden voiced his disapproval of several phases of the pact of London, and he especially warned British traders and manufacturers against the danger to them of the conclusion of the Franco-German commercial treaty.

In a second interview, granted a London paper today, Mr. Snowden reiterated his belief that the policy of permitting the French to remain in the Ruhr another twelve months was a wise one.

The spectacle of a chancellor of the exchequer openly dissenting from his chief, without first having resigned and thus receiving freedom to speak at large, has taken political circles aback. A serious crisis would have been precipitated instantly by such an action in the case of any previous government. But the Labour government has no mandate, program, and evidently Mr. Snowden has no mandate of resigning than Prime Minister Mac Donald has of asking him to do so.

Wants Germany Liberated.

Mr. Snowden in today's interview declared:

"The essential feature of the Dawes scheme is that Germany should be left free in her economic and financial affairs. It will be impossible to pay the very heavy reparations imposed upon her under this scheme unless she is free to work and develop her trade and commerce, to the greatest possible extent."

"That is why I feel so strongly that the French and Belgians have made a mistake in not volunteering completely to evacuate the Ruhr as soon as the Dawes scheme comes into operation."

British Trade Menaced.

Mr. Snowden also stresses his point of regarding the proposed Franco-German commercial treaty and its resemblance to British trade in India.

"This draft of an agreement," he continues, "proposes to compel Germany to admit imports free of duty from Alsace and Lorraine, goods which are in keen competition with similar British manufacture. British goods entering Germany would be subject to a very high tariff. It is evident that such an conceded advantage which, if carried through, undoubtedly will be disastrous to many British interests."

BRITON ANGERS PARIS

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.) (Copyright 1924 by The Chicago Tribune.) PARIS, Aug. 20.—The attack of Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, on the partial conclusions of the London conference has aroused bitter and caustic comment here, both in official circles and in the opposition groups.

"We now understand why England is so anxious to have France and Germany to help her in the Ruhr and Alsace-Lorraine," is a summary of a majority of the comments.

"The reason is that England fears Germany may be subject to a very high tariff. It is evident that such an conceded advantage which, if carried through, undoubtedly will be disastrous to many British interests."

Seeks Germans as Partners.

The semi-socialist Temps, in a sharp response to this "new" effort to unite France and Germany on the basis of a productive accord," declares that France can acquire a share of German industry despite the absence of American financiers and without the aid of England. "There is no room for England," it calls. Mr. Snowden's intervention is distinctly unwelcome and adds only that it is none of his business.

"Mr. Snowden wants to prevent the Germans from delivering coal to France and he wishes to prevent France from interesting herself in any German industry," the paper asserts.

On top of all this, he wishes to prevent the French and Germans from uniting on the part of the Ruhr and thus complicating in hating one another, France and Germany will more easily allow themselves to be bound and gagged for the profit of what Mr. Snowden calls British commercial interests."

In general it may be said that Mr. Snowden's speech has moved Frenchmen to a comprehension of the importance of being compelled to gain by an industrial and commercial alliance with Germany than any other factor in recent weeks.

New Driveway Will Soon Relieve Traffic Congestion

This picture, taken from the sky, shows how autoists will soon be able to reach the south side with out encountering the Michigan avenue traffic jam. Michigan avenue is now being widened from Randolph to Monroe street. Autoists can turn east on Monroe street, then north on the Grant park driveway, which appears as a broad white line on the map. They then have the choice of two driveways to the new outer drive, under construction, indicated by the dotted line. This drive will connect with widened South Park avenue by a viaduct, already started, at 23d street. The gap between the Field museum and 23d street will be completed this fall. U.S. FLYERS READY TO JUMP TODAY FOR GREENLAND

Ship Reaches Iceland with Spare Parts.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Americans round the world fliers and Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator, who will accompany them on their flight to the North American continent, will take off on the long lap to Fredrikstad, near Camp Farewell, East Greenland, at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning, to be back on Aug. 22.

The decision was made this morning at a conference on board the United States liner Alaska. Mr. Locatelli, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the round the world fliers, and Lieut. Leestad.

The Richmonds arrived at 9:34 o'clock this morning, and spare parts were working only a few days each week.

2 Colored Girls Wounded

A long forgotten cartridge in the chamber of a dusty old rifle—a relic of civil war days—suddenly blazed into life, killing two little colored girls. The rifle hung in a closet of John Cochran's home at 1938 Walnut street. The family of three daughters, Nettie, 16, and Catherine, 8, were helping their parents. Unable to reach the gun, they asked an old man, Christopher Weller, to get it for them. She did. The next instant there was an explosion and the sisters fell to the floor.

INDIAN HARBOR, Labrador, Aug. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—A survey of the American army world flight situation today indicates that if the present emergency continues the 25,000 Illinois miners and their dependents who are now working on the ships of the warships guarding the air expedition's route may be come serious.

No navy oil tankers are believed near enough to relieve the situation and there is about an average of 60,000 gallons aboard each destroyer, oil

it would take several days for a tanker from Halifax to relieve the shortage.

The destroyers must reserve 30,000 gallons each to reach Halifax.

HERRIN MINERS, WITHOUT JOBS, REJECT PAY CUT

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—A reduction in wage scale was suggested by operators as the "principal remedy" for the current depression in the southern Illinois coal industry at a round-table conference of the miners and the managers of the Herring Lions club.

Regional officials of the United Mine Workers had declined to participate in the conference, holding that debate on wages would be futile.

All speakers agreed that conditions were "desperate." It was estimated that 25,000 Illinois miners and their dependents who are now working on the ships of the warships guarding the air expedition's route may be

THIS BROTHER OF 'DREAMER BRYAN' IS A GO-GETTER

Doing W. J.'s Work Put Him Where He Is.

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
IV.—"W. J." and "Brother Charley," Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 20.—(Special)—It was a staggering matter of 150,000 unanswered letters that took Charles Wayland Bryan out of small business and started him on a career that has brought him to high place. Pictures like me—who call half a dozen letters a day "my correspondence" and let it bank up on them, may read a helping hand in the story, the moral being that the way to get a thing done is to do it.

Let Governor Bryan tell the story: "In Omaha, in 1886, I was a tobacco broker; had fourteen salesmen in the middle states, trained them in their work; supplied them with traveling expenses and samples. I was sent direct from the factory to the retailer, giving the trade you can even see back as that. I was 29 years old then; my brother was 36. Here's a point for your record about me: I never kept a cigar store, though all the papers say I did. I was a tobacco broker with desk room in a cigar store.

William Needed Help.

"Well, my brother's first campaign for the legislature was a failure, as a result of the immense amount of touring he had done his correspondence and his business affairs generally had been neglected. He lifted a cry for help. Would I come down to Lincoln and assist him in getting matters in order? I came. A hundred and eighty-five thousand letters were sent to him and there were still coming at the rate of 2,000 a day. I jumped in with two secretaries and eleven stenographers and at the end of eighteen months I was keeping up with the current mail—5,000 a day—and had cleaned away the accumulation.

"At first I attempted to handle both my brokerage business and my brother's affairs. I could not, and so informed the Hancock brothers of Lynchburg, Va., and sent them back to him. But Harry loves boxing matches, hunting, horse racing. The older brother is a dreamer; the younger is a door-eating activity—and worried not by conflict but by business in him controls.

"It was so in the mapping of his operation of every detail of his most celebrated achievement—the founding of Lincoln's municipal coal yard. In that case the three municipal commissioners and the president what he described as "an unlikely combination" to keep up "iniquitous practices." He had to go ahead and show the people of Lincoln that his vision would work. It did. And it worked elsewhere. He says that last year he sold coal under governmental auspices to upwards of 150 towns in Nebraska as a protection against unconscionable profiteering."

When I told him that the refrain of his opponents was that his selling operations under municipal and state surplus was used from time to time in promoting progressive legislation, whether his brother was in the campaign as a candidate or not. The paper was established for the purpose of preventing trusts and monopolies from imposing upon the great unorganized common people. My brother had received flattering offers to become editor of various papers, but he had no time for it and seemed to want a paper controlled by himself, and no business office trammel. We made the price of our weekly a dollar a year. Subscriptions poured in to the number of 20,000 by the time the first number was ready. That was mid-January, 1901. The paper had its way without hired solicitors, and its subscription drives were made through the mails. No ads were accepted from trusts and combinations.

Then He Is Governor.

"We discussed the Commoner in my brother's office, and he said he had no time for it and besides it had served its purpose. My brother was reaching the public by the Bible talks and magazine articles. The Commoner's peak in circulation was 275,000 copies a week. It went into every voting precinct in the land."

"Whenever," said one of his former colleagues of the Commoner, "a man appeared in the office with a bill Chicago gave him precedence over everybody else. Nothing worried Charley like an unpaid bill."

Pretty good epithet for an extremely live man, say I, and so leave Charley on the knee of the political gods.

MCCOY'S SISTER GIVES UP SLAIN DIVORCEE'S GEMS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 20.—(Special)—A small fortune in jewels stripped from the body of Mrs. Theresa Weinstock Mora, and sought for three days by the authorities, today was turned over to the police by attorneys for Mrs. Fred Thomas, sister of Kid McCoy, arraigned in Superior court today for murdering Mrs. Mora.

The jewels consisted of a platinum wrist watch, studded with diamonds and sapphires, and with an attached clasp of many diamonds; a ring with a single black pearl of large size, and a brooch ornament in the form of a bird, covered with diamonds and sapphires.

Their value is said to be $5,000. Albert A. More, divorced husband of the dead woman, who had accused McCoy of taking the jewelry, said that one other piece was missing, a diamond guard ring.

McCoy Gave Her Gems.

Mrs. Thomas, in a statement six days ago, mentioned that McCoy gave her some articles of jewelry when he visited her at 2 a. m. on Aug. 13, and that she had no objection that he had done so.

McCoy, arraigned in Superior court to-day, was taken before Judge Charles Crall of the Superior court to be arraigned on two indictments voted by the grand jury.

The accused man threw the court room into excitement when the murder indictment was read. The court clerk said: "He did feloniously assault and commit murder," when the former welterweight champion raised his seamed face, surged forward a step, and roared: "I did not."

His counsel quieted him quickly while bystanders drew away, remembering the two spells of swooning madness which seized McCoy in the city jail yesterday.

Presented Sorry Figure.

McCoy presented a sorry figure as he entered the courtroom yesterday and seemed so that the glistening bald oval of his forehead skull first attracted the eye. The short clipped black curly hair was unkempt.

Jawiness was lost from the figure whose powerful shoulders seemed borne down by the weight of a blue denim shirt, inscribed "county jail."

The jewels consisted of a platinum wrist watch, studded with diamonds and sapphires, and with an attached clasp of many diamonds; a ring with a single black pearl of large size, and a brooch ornament in the form of a bird, covered with diamonds and sapphires.

CAL GAINS HIGH LEAD IN STRAW VOTE AT AURORA

Has 3 to 1 on Bob; 5 to 1 on Davis.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.
Aurora, Ill., Aug. 20.—(Special)—
No far as sentiment can be ascertained by a straw vote at the Central States exposition—where will continue here through Saturday—President Coolidge is a three to one favorite over Senator
La Follette. By the same process indicating, the President is leading
Mr. Davis, Democratic entry, by five to one.

These expressions are an interpretation of the percentage of votes received by each candidate on three different days conducted by the Tribune. The first tabulation is of the votes of Kane residents exclusively, printed in the Tribune yesterday Monday. The second is of voters who live outside of Kane county, and was printed Tuesday. The third summary is of voters as they came, regardless of place of residence, and published today.

each candidate, may be summarized as

LABOR LEADERS ASSURE G. O. P. THEIR SUPPORT

Many Won't Follow Gompers to La Follette.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.
Labor has not been delivered into the La Follette-Wheeler insurgent ticket. The "Dob-oat" crowd may have taken over the Socialist party and received the endorsement of some of the labor chiefs and their organizations, including the veteran Samuel Gompers, but there are many labor leaders who protest against attempts to divide their movement bodily to La Follette.

Butler Holds Party.
Such, perhaps, is the shortest summary of the meeting of the national committee of the Republican national committee by a group of labor leaders who conferred with the G. O. P. chief at headquarters yesterday. The meeting concluded a series of conferences Mr. Butler had with labor leaders.

Some of the men who attended the conference:
Dan G. Smith, Chicago, former general chairman of the Rock Island line switchmen; J. R. Neal, Baltimore, International Typographical union; J. A. Madsen, Portland, Ore., Longshoremen's union; George F. Purcell, Boston; C. T. Purcell, a Franklin association director; J. G. West, Orange, N. J., Allied Printing Trades council; Joseph P. Ryan, New York, International Longshoremen's association; Lawrence T. Henry, New York, Longshoremen's union; T. B. Hart, Toledo, maritime engineers; W. J. Reinhart, Caen, N. J., machinists; George Dolan, Chicago, stationary engineers; E. M. Foley, Chicago, president, International Dredgers' union; J. J. O'Connor, Chicago, secretary-treasurer, Brotherhood of Eighteen-Hundred; and J. J. Flynn, Chicago, former vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees.

He Is Highly Pleased.
There was no "blah" about the conference, and the only statement Mr. Butler had to make about it was this: "The gentlemen were good enough to come here, because they feel that labor has many problems in this campaign affecting its self-respect and its continued influence with the general body of American citizens. I have been highly gratified at the sentiments they expressed."

T. W. O'Conor, chairman of the United States shipping board, who has carried a union card for years, attended the conference.

What Labor Has Learned.
"Labor has found from painful experience that it cannot force a man, by law, or any other means, to open his place of business and maintain a pay roll," he said. "The employer can be assured of his business and be forced out of existence by the legislation which Mr. La Follette proposes in his political platform. Labor must always do its own thinking, and when you choose your leaders you gave them great powers, but did not give them the right to deliver your vote."

In reciting a list of Calvin Coolidge's actions in behalf of women, Mr. O'Connor said the signature of the "fourth hour week" bill for women wage he was Governor of Massachusetts was one of the most important things he had done.

DAWES JUST THE MAN TO PUT US
IN: BRYAN (W. J.)

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—By the Associated Press.—William Jennings Bryan, who is on a Chautauqua lecture tour, stopped here today long enough to speak at the campaign headquarters of Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee who is opposing his brother, Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, for the vice presidency.

"The more I hear him speak," Mr. Bryan said, "the happier the Democrats will be. He is exhibiting a what reactionary policies mean."

His speech is just the material the Democratic party needs most at this time. He said Mr. Coolidge and the reactionary sentiment of the nation, but Mr. Dawes is more outspoken in his beliefs than the President. Mr. Dawes says what Coolidge thinks.

Mr. Dawes represents the policies that have brought into existence a party that led by La Follette. He will convince all progressive voters it would be disastrous for the country to turn to a Republican ticket. In such an event, congress would turn Democratic for sure to protect the nation from the reactionary elements."

SEES POSSIBLE 346 DEMOCRATIC ELECTORAL VOTE

Senator Bases Figures on 1922.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.
Washington, D. C., Aug. 20.—(Special)—That the country is Democratic on the basis of the latest gubernatorial and congressional elections was asserted by Senator Jones (Dem., N. M.) chairman of the Democratic national campaign committee in an analysis of the situation today.

In view of the "survival of corruption" as disclosed in the investigations by Senate committees, Senator Jones said he believed that the various states will record their votes this fall in much the same manner as they did in the most recent elections, and that this would mean a decided victory of the Democratic national ticket.

Such is the Democratic Secret.

Any one interested in the political situation of today has but to examine the national status of the country from the viewpoint of existing party conditions to get a proper angle on what is to happen at the coming presidential election in November," said Senator Jones.

It is probably not generally known that of the forty-eight states of the Union twenty-seven have Democratic governors and these states with Democratic executives represent 290 electoral votes. These states, with their electoral vote, are: Alabama, 12; Arkansas, 6; Georgia, 14; Kansas, 16; Kentucky, 12; Louisiana, 10; Maryland, 8; Mississippi, 10; Nebraska, 8; Nevada, 3; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 14; New Mexico, 3; New York, 45; North Carolina, 12; Ohio, 24; Oklahoma, 16; Oregon, 5; Rhode Island, 4; South Carolina, 9; Texas, 22; Thomas, 26; Virginia, 12; and Wyoming, 3.

Gain Received in 1922.

In addition to the states which have declared their preferences for Democratic administration the following additional seven states elected Democratic senators in 1922: Delaware, 2; Indiana, 15; Michigan, 15; Montana, 4; Utah, 4; Washington, 7; West Virginia, 8. Adding the fifty-six electoral votes of these seven states with the other twenty-seven states we have a total of 346.

The state delegations in the house of representatives also reflect political conditions of today. Of the forty-eight state delegations twenty are Democratic, nineteen regular Republicans, and three are allotted to La Follette, and five states have delegations half Democratic and half Republican.

VOLSTEAD FOES FIGHT HARD FOR WET CANDIDATES

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20.—(Special)—Illinois is among the states where the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is concentrating its attention in congressional contests, according to Capt. W. H. Stayton, founder and executive head of the association. Reflection of present liberal congressional elections and a gain of about fifty members is necessary, according to Capt. Stayton, if a modification of the Volstead act is to be obtained.

The campaign now being conducted is really nonpartisan in character, with aspirants for nomination or re-nomination in all of the parties receiving our support where they are of a liberal stripe and are opposed by a dry rival," said Capt. Stayton.

COOLIDGE LAUDS DAWES' SPEECH; PITCHES QUOITS

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 20.—President Coolidge sent his "warm congratulations" to Charles G. Dawes on the vice presidential nomination of speech of his dry rival, the Hon. James E. Shields, recent superintendent of the Vermont Anti-Saloon league.

"Excellent organization exists further west. For instance, the battle will be fought strenuously in Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, where the issue is clear cut in many congressional districts, and where the liberal candidates who have joined the campaign in the other states are solidly held by the voters of liberal sentiment with the organized support of the branches."

With the addition of less than fifty liberal representatives from the latter districts there will be a majority in Congress openly pledged to dependency favorable to a modification of the constitutional provisions of the Volstead act."

JONES ATTACKS HIGH TAXES IN AURORA SPEECH

Takes Strong Stand for Good Roads.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 20.—[Special.] It cost the state to run the state of Illinois for a year than it cost in either year of its history. Fat pay rolls, excessive boards and commissions; extravagant departments and exorbitant appropriations necessarily prevented reduction in taxes."

With this as his text Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton, Democratic candidate for governor, today addressed a huge crowd at the Central States fair. He was warmly received by the crowd and his address, centering in a plea for tax reduction, was vigorously applauded.

Government Costs Too Much.

"The cost of government is entirely too high," Judge Jones declared. "There is no relief in sight unless the management of government is placed in the hands of men who have a different viewpoint from those who are responsible for the conditions of the present and the past."

"State treasurers have treated the public money as their own. Instead of exercising that care over it which it is their duty to do they have sought to put it out at profit for themselves. This practice has blasted the reputations of men who have shamed our state in the eyes of the world."

For Good Roads.

Judge Jones took a strong stand in the interest of good roads. "If I am fortunate enough to be elected governor of this great state, will continue the building of hard roads. It will be my aim to build the greatest amount that a constructive program will permit, and they shall be built without regard to political exigencies or personal grudges."

Mayor Dyer of Chicago and Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Stague also spoke.

DAWES OFF TO MAINE

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Political leaders said Charles Gates Dawes would fire the shot that would open the fall campaign in earnest. From all appearances his speech formally accepting the Republican vice presidential nomination at Evansville Tuesday night enlivened all campaign yesterday.

Here are a few things that happened to put national, state, and county activities in high gear:

Gen. Dawes himself left for Maine to stir up things for the state election.

Gen. L. Shriver, chairman of the Democratic national committee, arrived at western headquarters on his way from Lincoln, Neb., to New York long enough to say that Chicago would be the base of operations for a strenuous fall of September campaigning by John W. Davis.

National Organization Trip.

John M. Nelson, manager of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign, made a hasty departure for St. Louis, with Kansas City and other points west as his destination in an organization trip.

Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state committee, opened state headquarters at the Congress hotel.

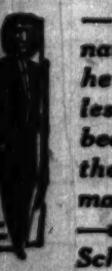

The La Follette-Wheeler crowd selected the name "Progressive" as the label for their ticket in Illinois and set to work on a slate of electors.

Chairman Butler and Secretary West of the Republican national committee met with a Wisconsin delegation headed by T. H. Abel of Sparta to lay out their plans for preventing La Follette from "shut out changing" the Republicans on electors and committee men in the Wisconsin state convention Sept. 12.

Gen. Anson Phelps as Manager.

Gov. Small's representative to the Republican county peace conference sent word that Charles Piaz, former member of the United States shipping board and prominent Chicago business man, would be acceptable to them as

A Social Failure Until He Found Out

With every natural advantage he was nevertheless a social failure because he lacked the information no man likes to ask for—until he heard of Schaffner.

He had a closet full of dress clothes. But time after time he made humiliating social blunders because he did not know which formal clothes were correct to wear for the occasion.

In wearing formal clothes there is no middle ground. You are either dressed right or wrong. So small a thing as the wrong kind of collar may make you the object of social ridicule.

Heretofore it has been difficult for men to secure the proper information on what to wear for any particular occasion. Now Schaffner has created a new free information department that makes it easy. Simply call State 6282, Mr. Fisher, or if out of town write, giving details as to the affair, the time, the place, etc. Schaffner will tell you without cost or obligation what to wear and will set aside all questions and doubts in your mind.

HANDS OF DEATH

DEATH HANDS MOVE TO 397 AS AUTOS KILL TWO

Man and Boy Die, Victims of Speed.

As automobiles clipped off two more lives yesterday, the hands on THE TRIBUNE'S clock of death ticked on to indicate a total of 397 motor deaths in Cook county since Jan. 1.

George Schmidt, 8 years old, Dolton, Ill., died at the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey of injuries received on Aug. 12, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Charles Copis of Lovington, Ill. The inquest was continued until Aug. 20.

A bicyclist driven by Philip Brown, 12, West Roxbury, was struck and fatally injured Fred Bushman, 59 years old, a chef, who lived at 220 South Wood street. The driver was held.

William R. Gaines of Blue Island was struck and severely injured by an interurban train at the 159th street crossing. The motor of his automobile stalled. He was taken to a hospital in a black flag bearing a four leaf clover and an oil can ram-pant."

At the first regular meeting of the newly formed Illinois Safety council, held at the Elks club yesterday, plans were discussed to present remedial motor laws to the state legislature at the coming session.

A suggestion of Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman received particular endorsement. He asked that all towns and villages in the state be required to post signs at their city limits, giving the name of the town and the speed limit. The signs should indicate such change in the rate of speed permitted, Sheriff Hoffman declared.

The council also condemned the practice in small towns of placing motorcycle policemen in hiding places to trap speeders. Much better results are to be obtained when policemen patrol the highways, their presence proving a deterrent to speeders, it was said.

Fear Riots in Honolulu as Soldiers Avenge Attack

HONOLULU, Aug. 20.—A series of fires between soldiers and civilians is reported to have been a raid by 700 Fort Shafter soldiers through the Kalihi district of Honolulu on late yesterday for the beating up of one of their comrades by gangsters. Military and civil police quelled the riot after the soldiers had routed a large mob with their fists. Many civilians were beaten daily by gangsters.

BEVO BRYAN.

Senator James Watson says that the real race is between President Coolidge and Charles Bryan and that in his opinion if the next president is not Coolidge it will not be Davis, La Follette, or Davis, but the Nebraska brother, "Bevo Bryan." Senator Watson called him, "a mere echo of the real Bryan." The senator gets credit for the first snappy tag of the campaign, but even as one-half of one per cent Charles could send this country on a wilder spree than W. J.

Senator Coolidge of Rhode Island died recently. His successor will be elected in November if there is time under the Rhode Island statutes. The governor of the state is a Democrat. If there were no election a Democrat would be appointed. In an election a Republican probably would win, but that is no certainty and in figuring prospects the possibility of another Democratic vote in the senate must be considered.

Before this vacancy was caused by death it was conceded that Bryan had more than a fair chance of being elected president, the election of president going from a deadlocked electoral college to a deadlocked house of representatives and then to the senate. The house itself is deadlocked and unless some congressmen deserted their party the house could not elect a president. That is why Senator Watson says that Charles Bryan is the contender against President Coolidge.

THE AMERICAN RED CAMPAIGN.

Comrade Zack Foster, presidential candidate of the Workers' party, has more contempt for Senator La Follette and Senator Magnus Johnson and their political effort than for Coolidge and Davis. There always are other fees to be paid, and so on ad infinitum. Comrade Foster, in his Youngstown opening speech, said the President was service to New England capitalism and that Mr. Davis, as ambassador to Great Britain, served Standard Oil, United States Steel, Bell Telephone, and the Chicago packers, was a product of the open shop coal fields of West Virginia, and picked by the house of Morgan to succeed Elkins Root.

These, however, are only the open ways of capitalism; but Mr. Foster recognizes in La Follette, leader of the petty bourgeoisie, and Sam Gompers and Magnus Johnson the real bulwarks of the capitalist system.

President Coolidge and Mr. Foster are the only two candidates who stand on a record of accomplishment. Mr. Coolidge accepts the present condition of the United States as a measure by which the Republican ticket must be judged. Mr. Foster has the achievements of the soviets in Russia back of him. He does not ask the voters to accept his plan on faith. There is a mortuary record to prove it. The Red slogan is "More work—for the undertaker."

BUILDING PROFITS.

The wage scale for union painters in Chicago has been raised from $1.25 to $1.50 an hour. That's good news for the painters. It may not please the apartment dweller, who has been planning to buy or build a house of his own when he could finance it, but it is not altogether bad news for the country as a whole.

Compared to the recessions in many other lines of business in the last few months, the building industry throughout the United States has maintained remarkable activity. That is because we have needed new buildings and could afford to erect them. Costs have been high, but not prohibitive. The fact that the industry can raise wages in one of its important trades is additional evidence that it is upon a sound basis. The result is an estimated annual turnover of $5,000,000,000 in the various branches of this essential industry alone. That is too important an element in our economic life to trifled with.

Casts there is a point at which costs may become prohibitive. That is the point where they convince potential builders that there can be no profit in building. The building trades, if they are wise, will shut that point.

EVERYBODY WANTS TO COME. NOBODY WANTS TO GO.

Marcus Garvey has bought the steamship Gen. Goethals, the former Grunswald of Germany, 4,418 tonnage, as the first of a fleet to run between the United States and Liberia, operated by the Black Cross Navigation and Trading company. Garvey said the object was to carry American Negroes who wanted to repatriate themselves.

Theoretically there is an ideal opportunity for the development of a civilized nation in Africa. The Negroes of the United States have had training in industries, arts and sciences. At least the north they have had experience in politics and government. They have skilled craftsmen and professional men. They have known medicine and law. They have here the human material of a nation. They have in Liberia the land in which Garvey tries to induce them to form this nation of their own.

He attracted 8,000 members of the Universal Negro Improvement association to the New York dock where the Gen. Goethals is tied up and inspect the ship, but that is as much money as they invested in transportation to Liberia. In their case, as in the case of other critics of the United States, ideal conditions may lie beyond the sea, but the ideal is not worth the price of a ticket. The Red will not go to Russia. The black will not go to Liberia and the greatest offence this nation has given the world was to say that everybody should not come here.

There must be something wrong with a great many political interpretations of life in the United States.

WHERE THE TAXES GO.

Some figures in the opening paragraphs of Gen. Davis' speech accepting the Republican nomination for the Vice Presidency are worth repeating and emphasizing.

He shows that the Republican national administration has, by reducing waste and duplication of effort and pay rolls, by practical application of a scientific budget system, and by intelligent handling of government finances, brought about a reduction of $5,000,000 a day in the levy of taxes for national purposes. Federal income tax payers are already enjoying the direct profit of that economy.

But what is more important, though less pleasant, is his comparison of federal with state and municipal taxation. In 1921 federal government activities consumed 55 per cent of all the taxes, national, state, and municipal, collected in this country, while state and city governments consumed 41 per cent of the total. But in 1923 the federal government took only 28 per cent of the total taxes, while state and municipal governments consumed 72 per cent.

That makes clear a situation to which Tim Taxman has called attention frequently. If the people of this country want taxes reduced they should begin at home. The federal government has reduced them. Local governments have increased them. In view of the figures it is folly to blame the federal government for a crushing burden of taxation while we submit cheerfully to a burden doubly great imposed by our state and municipal governments.

If we are getting our money's worth in public improvements, public service, protection of property, and enforcement of law from the state and municipal authorities, very good. If not, we should see that we do. In any event we cannot complain over/about federal extravagance when we are spending twice as much at home.

THE TWELVE HOUR DAY.

A survey of labor conditions in the steel mills of the country made public by the Calcutt fund on the first anniversary of the official elimination of the twelve hour day reveals considerable cause for dissatisfaction. While the report asserts that the results of the establishment of the shorter working day are so generally satisfactory that neither manufacturers nor employees in the areas affected would return to the longer hours, it is clear that many men in the industry are still working twelve hours a day, and more are working seven days a week than were a year ago.

To the credit of the U. S. Steel corporation, against which the fight for elimination of the twelve hour day was chiefly centered, and which officially discontinued the long shift, it is said that the retention of the long day is observed chiefly among the independents. In the Pittsburgh district, for instance, some companies report that they have been inclined to yield in cases where employees wanted to work twelve hours a day to maximize their earnings.

That has a very familiar ring. It was the chief defense of the steel industry throughout the country when public opinion was voicing an emphatic demand that such working hours should be reduced. Now as then the employers put the responsibility upon the workers. But we doubt that they can go clear on that basis any better now than then. The public's interest is for good citizenship, attendant upon a decent life for these workers. There cannot be good citizenship or a normal, healthful life among workers or their families when a man's only leisure hours must be devoted solely to eating and sleeping to equip him physically for the grind of his other.

That must be corrected. The success of the shorter day where it has been given a fair trial is sufficient evidence that it can be corrected. The independents must follow the corporation in this act of social justice, and the corporation must complete its reformation, or a public opinion which has been allayed for a year will arise with new force to see that they do so.

Editorial of the Day

LABOR GROWS CAPITALISTIC.

(Minneapolis Journal.)

At times during the past decade it has seemed as though labor was about to become predominantly capitalistic, despite the stalwart individualism of wage leaders like Samuel Gompers. But of late such observers as David Karsner, former managing editor of the New York Call, John Spargo, Charles Edward Russell and others have noted a more conservative mood and a lessening appeal of working to working men.

The war had a tempering effect by breaking the unity of socialism on the issue of internationalism versus patriotism. The responsibility of office and of power has also reduced the appeal of socialism to labor by showing that when Socialists hold office they fail to accomplish what they promise and act much as others do in the same situation.

More recently, perhaps, than any of these forms of socialism the high wages and general prosperity that obtain in this country. In contrast with farmers and with industry, labor has enjoyed high and sure remuneration, about hours of work and freedom from the hazards of business depression.

One of the results of this wide distribution of property and of prosperity among laboring men is the rapid spread of employer ownership of industry. In increasing number laborers are becoming not only their own but part owners in industry and capital. Two hundred and fifty electric light companies, for example, are now selling their stock on easy terms to employees. One-half of the stockholders of Arrows & Co. are employees. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit companies have sold large blocks of stock to employees. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is reported to command 100 million dollars through its interest in nine labor banks. A recently established labor bank in New York City is said to have taken in over five millions in deposits the first day it opened. Within the shadows of Wall Street labor has established banks of its own. These are just a few illustrations of how rapidly American workmen are becoming capitalists through high wages and coordinated savings.

Restricted immigration will continue to advantage labor and an enlarging stake in industry should result in reducing discontent, eliminating strikes, and minimizing strikes.

Marcus Garvey has bought the steamship Gen. Goethals, the former Grunswald of Germany, 4,418 tonnage, as the first of a fleet to run between the United States and Liberia, operated by the Black Cross Navigation and Trading company. Garvey said the object was to carry American Negroes who wanted to repatriate themselves.

Theoretically there is an ideal opportunity for the development of a civilized nation in Africa. The Negroes of the United States have had training in industries, arts and sciences. At least the north they have had experience in politics and government. They have skilled craftsmen and professional men. They have known medicine and law. They have here the human material of a nation. They have in Liberia the land in which

SUMMER FEET.

M. A. H. writes: Kindly advise me about itchy toe blisters. I get them all over my left foot. As soon as one opens some more appear. I get them between the toes, under the toes, and on top of foot. 1. Is this dangerous? 2. What can we do about this?

Ans. Mrs. W. writes: I have a breaking out on my feet, mostly on large toes. Breaks out in a blister. Have had it up to time and again, but it breaks out again.

3. I have been told there was too much acid in my blood and not to eat fruit. Is this true? What do you think would cause this?

ANSWER TO MRS. A. H. AND MRS. W.

This is not a weather condition. Your letters are samples of many that come in at this season of the year. The stream of them will not stop until the latter part of September, but after that the subject will not come up again until next June.

This skin eruption is not to be confused with eczema of the toes, ringworm of the toes, Dhobi's itch, hookworm, dew, poison, and the other skin troubles.

It is not weather condition. The blisters are caused by a breaking out of the skin between the toes, mostly on the large toes. Breaks out in a blister. Have had it up to time and again, but it breaks out again.

RUSSIAN NOTE ON U.S. TOO HOT FOR
JAPS TO HANDLECHURCH FEDERATION AND SUNDAY SCHOOL
ASSOCIATION TO UNITE

BY THE REV. W. B. FORTON.
The Chicago Sunday School association, which has had a continuous existence for sixty-four years and includes 1,500 member churches, has decided to merge with the Chicago Church federation, representing sixteen denominations and 750 churches, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr. Thomas F. Holgate, dean emeritus of Northwestern university and president of the Church federation.

The merger was approved without division by a joint committee of thirteen, five from the Church federation, five from the Sunday School association, and three selected at large. The plan is subject to approval of the two bodies at a meeting in October, and such action is expected.

PEKING, Aug. 20.—(By the Associated Press)—Members of the Japanese legation here held a long conference today in an effort to reach a decision as to just what disposition should be made of the communication now held by K. Yoshizawa, Japanese minister and senior diplomat at Peking, from L. M. Kaishaku, Japanese ambassador to China, in which the soviet representative refused to accept conditions laid down by the United States minister, as a member of the diplomatic corps, in turning the Russian legation over to the soviet government.

The reply from Kaishaku is a direct answer to the American minister, through Yoshizawa, in which the American government wished the soviet government to understand that turning over the old czarist legation to the soviet in nowise constituted recognition of the soviet by the United States.

Therefore the Japanese minister, in basing his correspondence further, was undeterred, and it was indicated the matter may be referred to Tokyo. Meanwhile the American legation has received no communication of any sort from Yoshizawa on the subject of Kaishaku's rejection of the protocol.

PRAISES NEGRO
AS PROGRESSIVE

Dr. Robert R. Moton, head of the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, and president of the National Negro Business League, which is holding its twenty-ninth annual meeting in Chicago, pointed with pride last night to the development of the Negro race in the last few years. The convention is being held in the Wendell Phillips High school.

Cooperation and greater efficiency were urged by Dr. Moton.

He referred to the broadened field of Negro activity and spoke highly of their progress as a race.

For the past five years, which was founded twenty-five years ago, Dr. T. Washington, is primarily to promote the commercial and financial development of the Negro." Dr. Moton told of the early work of Washington, of the history of the league and its manifold purposes.

In speaking of the progress which the Negro has made, he said: "There is no need today for discrimination; rather there is every need for cooperation. Twenty-five years ago there were about 20,000 Negro business enterprises, little and big. Today there are 70,000."

Cooperation and greater efficiency were urged by Dr. Moton. "Let us all put personal differences and animosities aside," he said, "and pool our resources for the good of the race. We can command, if necessary, the advice and cooperation of the best and most experienced bankers in the country, men like Julius Rosenwald, George Foster Peabody, and Clarence Peabody."

Major William E. Dever, giving an address of welcome to the league, commanded the members on their work. He referred to the broadened field of Negro activity and spoke highly of their progress as a race.

For the past five years, which was founded twenty-five years ago, Dr. T. Washington, is primarily to promote the commercial and financial development of the Negro."

Checks totaling several thousand dollars and a bushel of discarded moneyless pocketbooks were picked up by Sergt. Carl Erickson of the Evanston police yesterday, on the lawns and street where 20,000 people gathered Sunday night to observe Brig. Gen. Charles E. M. Clegg's funeral ceremony. Among the billfolds cast aside by pickpockets was one bearing the official credentials of Lt. Thomas J. Stapleton, who accompanied a detail of Chicago police sent out to Evanston to guard the proceedings.

INVESTIGATE NEW PETERSON PRINTING FIRM

Data on It Is Sought by Bankruptcy Referee

Investigation of a recent organization known as the Regan Printing House of Delaware, an $800,000 corporation formed to take over the properties of County Commissioner Charles S. Peterson, following his $1,000,000 failure last May, was instituted yesterday by Referee in Bankruptcy Harry A. Parkin.

The corporation was founded a few hours after Federal Judge Adam C. Clark, on May 12 had ordered that Peterson's affairs be "held in status" until the completion of the bankruptcy procedure in connection with the failure of the Better Tires corporation, of which Mr. Peterson was a major stockholder. A petition in bankruptcy against Mr. Peterson personally was filed and acted upon at the same time as that against the tire concern.

Assets Are Sought.

While contempt of court proceedings were being held in absentia, Referee Parkin set yesterday's hearing to find assets and determine the status of the new "Delaware" organization.

According to the representations of Joseph B. Manning, attorney for G. E. Hazelwood, trustee for the Better Tires corporation and Peterson's estate, the formation of the company is an effort to circumvent the bankruptcy act and prevent creditors of Mr. Peterson from realizing the maximum amount on claims against him as an individual and as a stockholder in the Better Tires corporation.

Representatives of Mr. Peterson replied that the organization of the company was completed under a misapprehension and with no intent to defraud any of Mr. Peterson's creditors.

Absorb Three Concerns.

The new company was formed to absorb three concerns in which the former millionaires' controlling companies were then controlling the said. These companies were the Regan Printing house, the Peterson Linotype company, and G. D. Steers company.

Stock of these companies, as well as in numerous other companies in which Mr. Peterson had a minor interest, was absorbed with the Chicago Title and Trust company following the filing of the two bankruptcy actions.

On the same day—May 12—that Judge Clark took a hand in Mr. Peterson's difficulties, Mr. Peterson, his wife, and other directors of the Peterson Linotype company, including Mr. L. Skinner, a young lawyer who had no stock in any of the concerns, was elected president of the newly formed absorbing company, Attorney Fleming charges.

Secretary Demanded Stocks.

Three other directors, none of whom was a stockholder, also were elected, the records show, and immediately took over the operation of the three companies.

FILL U. S. ZEP FOR TRIP OVER OCEAN: FIRST TEST NEAR Germans May Try Out Big Airship Tuesday.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 20.—I'd like to see the bird that laid that egg," remarked an American visitor who had obtained a coveted admission card for an inspection of America's newest airship here this morning.

Some bird it would be. For this all-new egg, which is taking like a hydrogen gas pylon to the fourteen cells inside its shell, looks more than 100 feet in width. The observation port graces the root of the hangar. Next day will be required for the filling operations which began on Sunday, so it will be next Tuesday or Wednesday before the ZR-3 takes the air for its first technical test flight. This will be followed by other tests on which passengers will be carried.

May Cross Ocean in Month.

Shortly after the middle of September the ship will be ready for its long journey across the Atlantic. There is even a possibility, however, that the trans-Atlantic crossing will not be made before Oct. 5, as a start around Sept. 15 would throw it into the path of the equinoctial storms which prevail along the path to Lakehurst, N. J.

Technically the ZR-3 is capable of smashing the record of the British airship which flew to America. She may accomplish this feat en route to America if she encounters favorable weather. With a maximum speed of sixty miles an hour she can reach Lakehurst within fifty hours. The Zeppelin company, however, modestly estimates the duration of the flight as between fifty and 100 hours.

Cannot Predict Course.

Nor can the course be predetermined with any more accuracy. It depends on the weather, and it may lie anywhere between South Greenland and the twenty-fifth parallel.

Two or three test flights of three or four days each will be made before the first test flight, which will test the soundness of construction, and the functioning of the engines in the air. Thereafter another test will be made during which a crew of twenty-six picked men will receive instructions on the Atlantic flight. At the conclusion of this test the ship will return to her hangar, where she will await the start on her long flight to Lakehurst.

Oakshore Beach

Riparian Rights

—North Shore Homesites

This is to offer a number of unusually fine restricted homesites to those who wish to locate in an exceptionally high grade community on the North Shore.

Some years ago I acquired a strip of rolling land east of Sheboygan and Kenosha fronting Lake Michigan, picturesque and beautifully wooded. This is known as Oakshore Beach and includes the Chinois Golf Course, Oakshore Subdivision and other residence property.

The rare natural beauty of Oakshore Beach had always impressed me with its desirability, and with aid of landscape architects and engineers, a most unique and beautiful home community has been developed.

The sites are sold with broad paved roads, electric light, water, landscaping, and in private. Large homesites either fronting on the lake, or directly overlooking it can now be secured. On neighboring property I have established the Chinois Golf Course.

In addition to the natural beauty of Oakshore Beach, four distinct advantages are offered—riparian rights, large size, proximity to a golf course, rigid protective, exclusive restrictions.

The prices are lower than any comparable property between Chicago and Milwaukee. But sites are not sold on the payment plan.

Without obligating yourself and without being bothered by salesmen, you may secure a copy of a large and fully descriptive booklet, with local views, that will come from the press within two or three days. Simply mail the coupon below and I will send you your copy promptly.

GEORGIA STOPS MARRIAGE MILL TO OVERHAUL IT

Newlyweds May Not Be Really Wed.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 20.—Couples who have been wed in Georgia under licenses issued after Aug. 18 may again be married to though the marriage license is now void. The legislature placed on the recently revised marriage law requiring the posting of applications five days before licenses are issued.

This was the situation created today when Secretary of State S. G. McLendon and Assistant Attorney General T. R. Gross ruled that marriages contracted in the period between Aug. 18 and Aug. 23 necessarily must be illegal and void because no provision yet has been made to enforce the new law.

Gives Honey mooners a Worry.

The was created when the recent session of the state legislature contained no fixed date on which it was to be effective. It is held, therefore, that the governor's signature, attached Aug. 18, puts it immediately in force. Yet until enforcement machinery is put in motion in the various counties there can be no legal marriages, according to the official rulings.

Meanwhile not only are couples married under licenses issued this week in an anxious quandary as to their status under the law, but prospective brides and bridegrooms are being turned away by purged ordinaries.

Six Couples Disappointed.

Six couples were disappointed ordinary here today for marriages, but all the progress they could make was to leave their application on file.

Those contemplating matrimony were advised by Secretary of State McLendon to postpone their wedding dates until the law can be made fully operative.

INSURANCE CO. HEAD DEFENDS HIS MANAGER

Answering published statements in which Alfred Clover, former head of the Public Life Insurance company, declared that he would demand an immediate audit of the concern's books by President E. G. B. Welch, yesterday stated that St. George is merely taking a vacation and business trip.

"St. George had never served his connections with our company," Welch said. "He hasn't disposed of his Public Life stock, which is now in the company's vaults and in the hands of his secretary. He never signed our checks or had anything to do with the investments or finances of the company."

Welch declared that Clover was innocent of his dismissal from the company and "has been leading a futile war with a few disgruntled stockholders."

One Killed, 15 Narrowly Escape as Plank Falls

A plank which was being hoisted to the top floor of the Commonwealth Edison company's new plant at 38th street and Crawford avenue fell seventy feet yesterday and crushed the life of Joseph Jannino, 39, of 1991 Farnie avenue. Fifteen other laborers narrowly escaped death.

SOLDIER THOUGHT DEAD WELCOMED HOME BY KIN

Menasha, Wis., Aug. 20.—Reported dead in the world war and listed as buried at the battlefield of Chateau Thierry, Urville Bergeron, shell shocked and battle scarred veteran of the world war, who returned to his home three months ago, has died. His wife, who is back at the home of friends, while his family rejoices at his return.

Name on Tom's stone.

In Oakhill cemetery here lies the body of an unknown soldier, brought from France as that of Bergeron. On a soldier's monument is inscribed the name of Bergeron, as one of Menasha's sons. Months ago, Bergeron came back to his home here, heard the talk of his glorious demise in France, viewed his grave in Oakhill, saw his name on the stone tablet, sought recognition, and went away disillusioned.

It came months later, and again he failed in his quest, though his name failure was part of his claim in the attitude of his kin.

Found in New Orleans.

On his third attempt he stood before his mother, but there was no recognition. As his car sped away, intuition told the woman she had been gazing on the face of her son, changed by the ravages of war. She called after him, "Son, you're gone." A search of months followed, and he was found in New Orleans.

Now, ill from his wounds, Bergeron seeks a recovery, which doctors say, can only come through the sympathy and care of his kin.

ONE AUSSIE PAIR IN SEMI-FINALS OF NET TOURNAMENT

STARS PLAY HERE

America's three leading tennis stars are to play at Skokie within the next month, according to an announcement made last night by Maurice Miller, chairman of the tennis committee of Skokie Country Club. Helen Wills is to play an exhibition match in Skokie on the 15th instant, who has not as yet been named. Miss Wills is stopping three days in Chicago on her return to California after winning national and Olympic women's honors.

The other match is carded for Saturday, Sept. 20, when Big Bill Tilden will play an exhibition against Little Bill Johnston.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 20.—The National lawn tennis doubles championship took semi-final form today with the Australian team of Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood surviving with three American combinations—William T. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco, the time titlists, the Olympic champions; William Richards and F. T. Hunter of New York, and the Kinsey brothers, Robert G. and Howard O. of San Francisco.

They are paired in that order to decide tomorrow who goes into the finals.

Mixed Doubles Open.

At the same time the national mixed doubles championship play was begun, with Miss Helen Wills of San Francisco, California, women's champion, and partner of Vinny Richards, winning two matches, while Mrs. Molla Mallory and W. T. Tilden II, defending champions, played once to win with some difficulty their match in the second round.

The high spot of the play on the courts of the Longwood Cricket club today was the five set match in which Australia advanced over the veteran American team of R. G. Kinsey, H. L. Mallory and Watson, Washington, New York. The other Australian team, of Norman E. Brooks and H. E. Schlesinger, had gone down before the attack of Richards and Hunter, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Patterson and Wood were the last remaining foreign team in this tournament, which originally had eight. They fought hard for survival, and found the American matching them set for set. In the end they won, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Good and Bad Tennis.

It was a match of tennis that spanked and tennis that ran to ordinary play. Williams was his brilliant self at times, with shots of high artistry. By gaining more placements than any other player on the court, he continued his attack, and, to the strains of a rousing bidder for a place on the American Davis cup team.

Wood was the star of the Australian team, his finishing shots from half court and his net defense being the prime factors in his team's success, but Patterson was at his best in the closing set, in which the Americans did not score.

In the other international match of the men's doubles, the champions of the Olympiad and of Wimbledon put out Brooks and Schlesinger in straight sets, when they found the former uneasy.

Vinny Is Star of Match.

Richards bore the brunt of battle for the Americans, but Hunter shared honors with him in the scoring shots that he pushed through Schlesinger's backhand, or at Brooks' feet. Schlesinger was at his best form of the tournament.

Johnston and Griffin had a hard fight on their hands at the start with the intercollegiate champions, Lewis White and Louis N. Thalheimer of the University of Texas, but after winning the first set 9-7, they carried off the next two more easily, 6-4, 6-2.

The intercollegiates beat Johnston's pair to form the first set to decisive and White's players carried it along until his service broke down. In the second set Johnston inserted a perfect placement to upset Thalheimer's service, and took his own service game for the set at love. Again it was a center court shot by "Little Bill" that brought the match point in the third set on Thalheimer's service.

Easy for Kinsey Boys.

The Kinseys had an unexpectedly easy match with Snodgrass and Westbrooks. They tried lobbing exchanges in the open court, but to break through the Kinsey defense, but the later, pound low shots down the center court to count whenever they needed a point badly.

The national mixed doubles play brought a touch of color to the courts. To the lot of Miss Wills, herself only 18 years old, to eliminate at the start, was California girl prodigy Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Miss. Wills and Richard won, 6-2, 6-3, then defeated Miss Martha Bayard of New York and Harry Guld of Boston in the second round, 6-1, 6-2.

The champions, Mrs. Mallory and Tilden, who drew a bye in the first round, had a struggle to win in their match from Miss Katherine Gardner of Brooklyn, the former Miss Hardy of New York. The first set went easily, 6-1, but the second went fourteen games before they won, 6-2.

George Lott's Team Wins.

Miss Edith Gwynne of Boston and Jacques Brugnon of the French Davis cup team advanced through two matches to meet Miss Wills and Richard. The only match of the mixed doubles play was the contest of Mrs. V. H. Godfrey of Boston and Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia, who were seeded, by Miss Katherine Porter of Boston and G. E. Lott Jr. of Chicago, 6-3, 6-2.

Emmett Page of Chicago, paired with Miss V. Carter of Boston, lost to Miss Katherine Gardner and Josie Wheelerwright, a local team, 7-5, 6-2. Men's doubles summaries: POWER ROUND.

Robert G. Kinsey and Howard O. Kinsey, San Francisco, defeated Walter W. Westbrooks, Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-2. Vincent Richards and F. T. Hunter, New York, defeated William Brooks and W. T. Johnston, 6-3, 6-2. George L. Johnson and Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco, defeated Lewis White and W. H. Johnson, 6-3, 6-2. Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, Australia, defeated R. G. Kinsey and H. L. Mallory, 6-3, 6-2.

TILDEN DRAWS ALONSO AS FIRST NET RIVAL

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

JANESVILLE, Wis., Aug. 20.—

[Special]—Fishing in Lake Koshkonong and Rock river is coming back, so the old timers and the young tell us. Duck hunting is returning also.

For many years carp have played havoc with the lake and the river, sportsmen say. A year ago the legislature was induced to pass a bill permitting seining for carp in these waters. Close to 10,000,000 pounds of the fish were taken out by commercial fishermen, who sold their catches to the foreign settlements in China, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, and New York.

The reduction of the fish, which are claimed to have rooted out vegetation and killed spawn, is reported to have made it possible for more game fish to reproduce naturally this season. Lake Koshkonong has for tall and other vegetation in it this summer, grading to be done, it will not be difficult to have the fairways ready for spring very soon.

Fishing for the clubhouses have been accepted, and work will be started in time to have it completed in ample time for the opening.

Boys from Lincoln, Wisconsin, donated outright 140 acres for this golf course, has deposited $20,000 with the State Bank of Chicago for construction purposes, which the club will have five years to pay back.

The dues will be $100 a year starting April 1, 1925. The membership is open to all, and the club will purchase a lot in the Bonnie Brook subdivision getting a membership in the club.

In keeping with this work, pushed by the Frank Walton chapters of the Rock river valley, work is progressing to have a fish hatchery placed by the state at Atkinson. State Conservation Commissioner Elmer S. Hall has pledged his aid in making this possible.

STAR JUMPERS TO COMPETE IN A. A. U. GAMES

In the central A. A. track and field championships to be held Saturday at Stagg Field will be especially keen. In spite of the fact that a world's champion will be competitive in the high jump, the winner cannot be forecasted.

Harold Osborne, who has won the high jump and tall and all round title at the Olympic games, and Dewey Evans, a C. A. A. former team-mate at Illinois, have met several times. Only once has Osborne come away victor.

Fifteen members of the American Olympic team, one Canadian Olympic and three members of the 1920 team are expected to compete.

Karl Anderson, Japan, vs. Leo Shimizu, Japan; Francis T. Hunter, Beckley, W. Va. vs. Cedric A. Morris, Philadelphia; William Brookes, Gerald Wood of Australia; Susuo Okamoto and Zenzo Shishita of Japan, and Jacques Brugnon and René LaCoste of France.

The other Americans seeded include William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards, R. Norris Williams, Howard Kinsky, B. T. C. Norton, Francis T. Hunter, and Harvey Snodgrass.

Taken in Second Quarter.

The foreign stars seeded include James Horrocks of France, Pauline L. Patterson, and Pat O'Hara Wood of Australia; Susuo Okamoto and Zenzo Shishita of Japan, and Jacques Brugnon and René LaCoste of France.

The luck of the draw shifted a majority of the talent into the second quarter where five of the seeded stars and a few of other favorites listed. In this group are Tilden, Alonso, Richards, Howard, Tilden, Alonso, Richards, Howard, Tilden, Alonso, Harold Throckmorton, O'Hara Wood, and Brooks, while in the final quarter Patterson, Robert, Kinsky, Watson, Washburn, Snodgrass, Williams, and LaCoste are listed.

The complete draw follows:

UPPER HALF—Tilden—Matsuoka, Fukui, Japan, vs. Zee Shimizu, Japan; Francis T. Hunter, Beckley, W. Va. vs. Cedric A. Morris, Philadelphia; William Brookes, Gerald Wood of Australia; Susuo Okamoto and Zenzo Shishita of Japan, and Jacques Brugnon and René LaCoste of France.

LOWER HALF—Osborne—Matsuoka, Fukui, Japan, vs. Leo Shimizu, Japan; Francis T. Hunter, Beckley, W. Va. vs. Cedric A. Morris, Philadelphia; William Brookes, Gerald Wood of Australia; Susuo Okamoto and Zenzo Shishita of Japan, and Jacques Brugnon and René LaCoste of France.

SECOND ROUND—Tilden—Matsuoka, Fukui, Japan, vs. Leo Shimizu, Japan; Francis T. Hunter, Beckley, W. Va. vs. Cedric A. Morris, Philadelphia; William Brookes, Gerald Wood of Australia; Susuo Okamoto and Zenzo Shishita of Japan, and Jacques Brugnon and René LaCoste of France.

STROHMEIER TO COACH BUTLER

Pat Page, former University of Chicago star and now director of athletics at Butler college, spent the day in the city yesterday to sign Otto Strohmeier, another former Maroon athlete, to assist him at Butler this fall. It is the intention of the Hoofer college director to keep Strohmeier as a right hand man and especially as a scout for the Illinois and Iowa grid battles.

Strohmeier is familiar with the work at Butler, as he has assisted Page with the development of his baseball and basketball teams.

Page announced that Butler would start football preparation on Sept. 6, the rules of Indiana colleges permitting practice to begin on that date.

MacDonald Smith to Meet George Duncan on Links

LONDON, Aug. 20.—A golf match will be played over the classic Gleneagles course Sept. 1 and 2 between MacDonald Smith of America and George Duncan of Great Britain. The match will be best of five, and in addition to a substantial money prize a handsome cup has been promised the winner.

WORK STARTS ON NEW BONNIE BROOK COURSE

Motordom Today by J. L. JENKINS

JANESVILLE, WIS., Aug. 20.—

[Special]—Work on the new Bonnie Brook golf club course, at the Waukesha, has been started under the direction of Jim Poull, who planned the eighteen holes. As there are no trees to be cut down and not a large amount of grading to be done, it will not be difficult to have the fairways ready for spring very soon.

Plans for the clubhouses have been accepted, and work will be started in time to have it completed in ample time for the opening.

Although the medicine man of the Bridgeman Braves was well supplied with the usual remedies of the Indian materia medica, he overlooked the necessary oil for gassing mosquitoes, and the Indians who were part in the annual tournament at Bridgeman Park were plentifully bitten and had to be hospitalized.

The health department has already issued a mosquito control order for the state from Danville through McHenry, Decatur, Springfield, and Jacksonville. The walls around the houses are to be painted with the paint used by the department. Other main highways, as well as Dixie, Lincoln, and Bell and Egyptian trails will be included in the survey.

NAVY SECRETARY TO AWARD TRIB MEDALS TO GOBS

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 20.—[By the Associated Press.]—The team of British golfers who will compete for the Walker cup, sailed for the United States today on board the Queen Elizabeth.

A review will be staged for the benefit of the Navy's William G. Ward.

It is stated that Capt. J. H. Tolley, French open champion and captain of the British team, will endeavor to get the Americans to agree to have the sides composed of ten men each in stead of eight as in previous international matches.

It is stated that Capt. E. W. Holderness, British amateur champion, and Rogers Wethered, former champion, the team, according to critics, is at a disadvantage.

MARS SLIPS NEAR FOR 120 YEAR OLD DATE WITH EARTH

New York, Aug. 20.—[Special.]—A death scandal in the universe. Mother Earth has a date with that pugnacious planet Mars for Saturday.

After 120 years of comparative aloofness these two frisky spheres will slide to within 34,500,000 miles of each other.

So near, in fact, that Dame Earth considers it Mars' best chance in history to show some signs of life.

Then Mars Will Slide Away.

But probably nothing will come of it. After the fashion of bashful lovers, these two planets will twinkle at each other until about Sunday morning, as Earth's heart begins to ring. Mars will begin softly to slide away.

The cosmic chaperone—solar magnetism, or whatever it is—is relied upon to see that no harm is done. These young planets are so impudent. They must be kept in their places.

The earthlings alive in 1884 had as near a glimpse of this most neighborly of the planets as we moderns will have Saturday night. Every seventeen years since then the heavenly pair have reached the communion of 35,000,000 miles or so.

Mars Wobbles a Bit.

Then their paths pull apart. At about 350,000,000 miles of chafing interstellar space separated them (Mars' orbit is somewhat eccentric, like a sailor's). Hence the Saturday night rapprochement will be in the nature of a reunion.

In the drab terminology of the astronomer, this romantic situation will simply, most, be described as "in opposition." This means that Mars and the earth will be on the same side of the sun and nearly in a straight line. Mars will sparkle fifty times as brightly as when it is farthest away.

Astronomers in a score of lofty observatories, training their most powerful telescopes across the vast chasm, will take advantage of this opportunity to try once more to ascertain whether Mars raises any animal or vegetables, or has anything comparable in sentience to man.

Ask Aid of Radio.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20.—[Special.]—Willingness to cooperate in the work of Prof. David Todd, formerly head of the astronomy department at Harvard, to communicate by radio with Mars, and that planet is nearest the sun, was manifested by government departments here today by having all radio stations maintain silence at a fixed time so there would be no interference should Mars signal.

The Man in the Shadow
By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS
Derek Slakeham is replaced to prison for the Postall murder, his trial and conviction a tragic mistake. He was on his way home from Cape Town with Cecily, when he met and fell in love with Cecily Pendall. As Cecily was about to disappear for Paris, Cecily's father sent her to London. Cecily's father went on to London with Cecily, and was sentenced for the crime. He had not notified his family of his return to England, and had not been recognized as Lord Slakeham. Derek knew the murderers were two former associates of Pendall's known as Dickens and Caruside.

Derek knew the murderers were two former associates of Pendall's known as Dickens and Caruside.

The next day, in the presence of Lady Macon and his uncle, Sir Richard Cullane, he is married to Cecily. He bids his bride good-bye, and Lady Macon accompanies Cecily to Slakeham's office, and is followed there by Dickens. Dickens calls on Detective Rason and informs him Smith has broken out of prison. The detective telephones the prison and is told there has been no escape. Dickens takes the man to the prison office, and finds Smith is dead before the governor of the prison. Detective Rason is present at the interview, and tells the prisoner he knows he is Lord Slakeham.

INSTALMENT XI.
DEFEAT!

Slakeham made a gesture of helplessness. The detective had scored and scored heavily.

"That's unanswerable," he faltered, yet knew that he must somehow answer it. "But can't you see what you're asking me to do? Think how I

"The change came after her meeting with that man."

She thought how one could possibly produce complete proof that Miss Pendall was a guilty party in the conspiracy until the matter is thrashed out in court. She thought she accepted the other part of the condition.

"You won't prosecute her until you've got the man, then!" cried Slakeham, unable to conceal his exultation. "That's the best compromise, Mr. Rason. When you've arrested the man who is impersonating me—you prove that he is."

"Yes, I agreed to that," said Rason. "I'll agree not to arrest—and to advise my department against the arrest—but, of course, I must take steps to prevent her carrying on."

"What sort of steps?"

"I don't know yet—and it isn't incumbent upon me to give particulars," answered Rason with a touch of irritability—but, of course, I must tell Lady Slakeham that she has been deceived.

A long, thin, brownish Slakeham. Even then he was a mental picture of his mother as the detective gave his devastating information. His mother, without doubt, would believe the detective—and his mother could be terrible for all her gentleness. He could picture his mother and Cecily after the detective had left.

"I'm afraid all this has proved too much for you," Rason was saying with genuine kindness in his voice. "If you have nothing more to say to me I think it's difficult for you."

She tried to speak, but could not. Rason pressed the bell push and a maid came from the corridor outside. A moment later the door was unlocked and the wardress entered.

"Seven-o'clock, 'shun! Right turn! Quick march!"

Clang—trudge—clang! Iron shot heels on the iron corridors—iron grinding out a woman's happiness and a man's honor! He had tried to defeat iron with his pure intelligence and his pitiful daring, to set right a wrong by lying and chicanery. In the end he had cheated everybody—Dickson, Cecily, Aunt Edmundine, Uncle Richard, and his mother. And now the only way he had to do was to get hold of the man, and do it quickly.

"Dickson—the man who has been causing us all the trouble—knows Smith is Lord Slakeham. As soon as I let Slakeham see I know he clamped his fist and almost shouted, 'So Dickson told you that, did he? Damn him!'

The chief stroked his chin.

"I don't quite see where it fits in," he said doubtfully.

"The importance of it seems to me that it doesn't fit in at all—anywhere," said Rason quickly. "All the way he has been trying to work out a line which Dickson, at the trial of his life time afterwards, knows that particularly well, and keeps quiet about it. I can't even guess up the wildest story."

The chief nodded several times, as was his way when he had nothing to say.

"What are you going to do, then?"

"I want three men or eight hours to keep track of Dickson, sir."

"Very well," said Sir William. "You shall have them. In the meantime, what about the main line?"

"I thought of going down to see Lady Slakeham tomorrow, sir."

The chief nodded apathetically and Rason withdrew.

It was the second time Slakeham was passing through the most miserable period of his life. As day succeeded day and still there came no news of her mother, which to her was the most precious thing in her life, began to falter, her faith in herself, in her family, in her son—in her daughter-in-law.

It would be easy to imagine a spirited and over bold man getting into some kind of scrape of which he would not speak to his mother or to his wife. But imagination faltered at thought of his tempestuous wedding in the midst of his trouble, and then—a wall of silence over days that had already run into weeks.

At last she was shocked to find herself beginning to doubt whether Cecily really knew no more than she professed to know of Derek's strange secret—which amounted to nothing. After the incident of Cecily's furtive meeting with the stranger in the village she frankly admitted the doubt to herself.

Outwardly their relationship remained the same, except that each day Lady Slakeham, on various unanswerable pretexts, contrived to spend a short and shorter time in the society of her daughter-in-law.

It was the need to be with her that drove by the agency of her perplexity which undermined her faith in herself. The uncertainty was becoming more and more evident, so that she put a secret watch upon the post in the belief that Derek must at least be writing to his wife. Her cheeks burned with shame at the thought of condescending to decipher her own daughter-in-law—and the shame was none the less sincerely felt when her secret investigations wholly failed of any result.

"She is almost content to hear nothing from him," thought Lady Slakeham. "She doesn't move as much now as she did at first. The change came after her meeting with that man."

Into the midst of these thoughts came the visit of Detective Inspector

Rason, who had never met a detective in her life, and whom her irritation, was a wholly feminine curiosity.

"I will see that gentleman. Ask him in," she ordered, and a few seconds later came the sound of a little disappointed by the absolute correctness of Rason's appearance and hearing. She invited him to sit down and waited.

"I have, of course, come to see you officially, Lady Slakeham," he began. "A detective's duty is generally unpleasant—and I'm afraid my case is no exception."

Derek Slakeham took a firm hold of himself. The man had come about him, of course. Perhaps Derek was dead.

"In that case—the lady who is staying in your house and whom you beto be your daughter-in-law is not your daughter-in-law."

I am the pastor of a large church. When I came to the church some years ago I had only been pastor a short time when I learned that the husband of one of the members was in the hospital.

My mother, two friends, and I were out shopping. I was taken along mostly to carry the articles. The friend, having purchased a large granite roaster, gave it to me to carry. The roaster was wrapped in paper, but not tightly, thus allowing the handle to project.

I was tired after a short while so I decided to wait outside while the others went inside to do some shopping. The cover of the granite roaster slipped out of the paper and rolled down the street, making a loud noise.

While I was still red in the face I picked up the cover and went down the street to sit and wait in the car. W. S.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

MARY J. IT SEEMS TO ME THE sore on your nose is of a more serious nature than you think, Mary. If I were you, I would consult a skin specialist at once.

The fact that it is of several years' standing is in itself sufficient reason for avoiding any further delay in getting at the real cause of the trouble.

MYRA: DO NOT EXPECT THAT the bobbing alone will do the trick, dear. If you wish to improve the condition of your hair, you must give it attention, whether bobbed or not. Of course, it seems reasonable to assume that the less hair the easier it is to care for. Brush it every morning and night for a few weeks to ten days, then bathe it with a strong soap.

This will keep the scalp in a good healthy condition and you will soon see a vast improvement in your hair.

ETHEL: MANY PERSONS COMPLAIN about their feet in warm weather. If you have a tendency to perspire, if your feet are tender, give them a cold spray every morning. Turn on the faucet full strength—dry thoroughly with a bath towel, paying particular attention to the spaces between the toes. Be sure you are wearing properly fitted shoes, as ill-fitting shoes are responsible for much of the foot trouble.

If some bits of the butter covered proportion: One tablespoon of butter, one-half cup of sugar, one egg, one cup of liquid—1/2 milk or half milk and half water—two and a quarter of sifted flour, three level teaspoons of baking powder, one level teaspoon of cinnamon, one or two tablespoons of milk.

Method: Cream the tablespoons of butter, work sifted sugar into it, beat egg and then beat egg with liquid and add to sugar and butter, sift flour and measure, then sift with baking powder and cinnamon. Add liquid and cinnamon. Then bathe into baking sheet, strew or spill the milk for the top over it, turning it back and forth to cover the top, then strew the butter, sugar, and cinnamon over and bake in an oven at 425 degrees (quick) for about twenty minutes.

Chicagoans to See
Polo Match Prince of Wales Will Attend

Three prominent Chicago names, Eric H. Reynolds, John Borden, and Eugene Ryfield, appear on the list of holders for the Meadowbrook Hunt club polo tournament which has taken on so much added glamour from the heralded attendance of the Prince of Wales.

Many other society folk, some of them summering in nearby eastern lakes and mountain resorts, and some who have been in Chicago through the summer months, also are planning to attend the matches which are scheduled to begin on Aug. 24 at Meadowbrook.

Mr. Ryfield and Mr. Borden are ardent polo players and devotees, and are identified with the movement to arouse enthusiasm and interest in polo in these parts, but it is to be doubted whether as much can be said of the majority of those who are anticipating the matches.

The polo players will compete for attention with the central box of honor, which is to contain the royal visitor, according to present indications.

The debut tea of Marjorie Allen and Emilie Hoyt, two of the most charming of the debutantes, has been struck from the calendar owing to the illness of their grandfather, Benjamin Allen of Winnetka, but they are to have a joint hall some time in December.

The respective mothers of the cousins, Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt, who resided with Mr. Allen in Winnetka and Mrs. Benjamin C. Allen in Winnetka, State parkway, will be announced in due date to make place for the affairs until later in the season, however.

Miss Hoyt, wife of the North Shore hotel, who has been attending the fact that all of the Saturday afternoons in September were taken for debut parties, now has chosen Sept. 29, left vacant by the cancellation of Emilie Hoyt's tea, to present her daughter, Miss Judith Bodie, to society at a tea at the Indian Hill club.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis N. Kimball of Highland Park have selected an original and charming method in which to present their daughter, Miss Mary Kimball, to society. A musical in which Miss Kimball is to sing will be given on the evening of Sept. 9 at Ridgewood, the Kimball residence, for the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kimball. The invitation list includes only a very few of Miss Kimball's young friends, who are to assist her, but later on there will be some sort of an affair for all of the younger set.

A daughter was born on Monday to Mr. and Mrs. John C. Dawson Jr. of Lake Forest, the Frakes' son. Mrs. Dawson is the first name evidently being for her father, and the second name for her maternal grandfather, Richard Crane. Mrs. Dawson was Miss Emily C. Russell before her marriage.

A card bearing an Italian postage stamp arrived from Mrs. John Van Wagenen Alling, Miss Emily C. Russell, Mrs. Edward R. Litzinger, and Miss Edwin Litzinger. Having a fine time in Mrs. Litzinger's handwriting.

Mr. Medill McCormick is registered at the Blackstone hotel, having come in town from Rock River, farms at Byron on one of her frequent jaunts to the city. The Dawsons notification card was her chief reason this time, of course.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble Braden will depart from Lake Forest next Monday and will sail on the 27th for a six weeks' sojourn in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dink Jr. of Lake Forest are up at "Westmoreland," that hospitable camp of the Dick seniors in northern Wisconsin. They are expected back the early part of next week.

A luncheon and business meeting of the table dressing contests committee of the fourth annual exposition and trade display under the auspices of the Uptown Chamber of Commerce will take place at the Edgewater Beach hotel today.

Mrs. S. Johnston McNeill is chairman of the committee and the members are Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Miss Clara Lillian Pugh, George F. Nixon, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Gralow, Robert Hoffman, and Mrs. Fred Fredert. The exposition is to be held in the Broadway armory the week of Oct. 13.

ANSWER TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

Never mention a party given by a mutual friend to one who has not been invited. If it is not worse, it is an unattractive thing to do.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Parents Too Strict. I am a girl of 17, and I am in love with a fellow 23, who loves me dearly, but we cannot see each other often because I am kept strict. I receive many party invitations from boy and girl friends, but my parents let me go to these places. When I come home from work I have to stay home. Sometimes I make up my mind to leave home because I haven't a bit of liberty. What would you advise me to do? GRACE.

Grace; I feel that you are old enough to go to work every day; you are old enough to be allowed a little liberty. You should have some enjoyment and recreation. Why not have a heart to heart talk with your parents, explaining that you feel their treatment is just a bit unfair. Of course, dear, you will advise me to do?

STEEL BUSINESS GROWING BETTER, REVIEWS SAY

BY O. A. MATHER.

A better tone and somewhat larger operations in the steel and automobile industries are reported by the midwest reviews. But the situation in the steel industry is complicated by the fact that there has been a further yielding of prices in important finished products, although pig iron has firmied up.

"The steel corporation is reported to be operating somewhat above 85 per cent on ingots and slightly higher on products sold," the Iron Age says. "The entire industry probably was close to 85 per cent as the week began. The Chicago district furnished some data in an improved railroad demand that has been talked of for weeks, but more as a hope than as a definite expectation."

Advance Coming Slowly.

"Improvement in demand for steel is perceptible, but the rate of increase is below expectations," the Iron Age says. "Uncertainty in pricing is retarding sales and the majority of consumers are not yet convinced that the low point in prices has been touched."

A slightly better tone is being given to automobile production the latter part of the month. Automotive manufacturers are not yet in great heart, but believe witness to a steadily improving market and a continued forward movement in dealers' stocks. Sales volume has not developed to a high point and spot prices still marks demand throughout the country. There is a somewhat improved demand from agricultural centers.

Truck Production Larger.

The estimated production of 2,500,000 autos and trucks in the first half of 1924 is 10 per cent larger than in 1923 and brings output thus far this year to 2,554,123, compared with 2,359,235 for the corresponding period last year.

The Continental Motors corporation announced that production will be increased next month because of increased activity in the market and improved prices. President W. R. Angel said: "August shipments will be within 10 per cent of the peak month from the Detroit plant. He predicted a satisfactory business this fall."

The Hudson Motor Car company reported production of 16,000 cars since Jan. 1, compared with 15,188 cars for the whole of 1923.

Wilson Co. Affairs.

Progress in the readjustment of the affairs of Wilson & Co. is indicated by a call issued for deposit of the company's convertible bonds. The bondholders' committee, in consultation with the committee representing bank creditors, believes it is necessary to the company's plan to accomplish the readjustment of the company's financial structure.

The committee representing bank creditors reports that holders of over 85 per cent of the bank debt and commercial debts have agreed to an amendment of the indenture until Oct. 1, 1924, and are cooperating with a view to allowing time for preparation of a readjustment plan.
